

MEREDITH WINNER OF ATHLETE'S MEDAL

Makes Total of 27 Points, Distancing Rivals. Varsity Won Game From Alumni—Good Time Made and Large Crowd Enjoyed Contests.

A. R. Meredith won the all-around athlete's medal at the annual field and track trials held at Richmond College yesterday, piling up 27 points and finishing 10 points above Strother, his nearest competitor for the honor.

A large crowd took advantage of the magnificent weather conditions to watch the college sports in the many events which had been scheduled. The program was divided into two sections, half of the events taking place in the forenoon and the remaining half in the afternoon.

Closing the morning program was a ball game between the varsity nine and a nine composed of the alumni of the institution. In five prettily played innings the varsity managed to win, 2 to 1.

Some fast time was made in the track events. The relay races, as usual, proved the big attractions, and considerable rivalry was manifested between the classes represented and the fraternities competing. League, without Richmond, cannot live, and Richmond will refuse to pay for amateur baseball at professional prices of admission. That's final. The worm has turned.

Slid Lodge was suspended by Manager Sullivan yesterday, and the suspension will hold indefinitely, unless the local management changes its present views. Lodge decided that he did not want to play professional ball any more, and has accepted a position with the Georgia Military College as physical instructor. He will report for duty next September. Knowing that he could not be with the team all season, because of his new duties, he asked for his release. Thursday night he was told that it was all right, and that he would be given the piece of paper. At the park yesterday, instead of getting his release, he was notified of his suspension, which means that his salary is tied up and several other inconveniences.

Lodge is a Washington boy and an alumnus of Richmond College. He caught on the college team for two years, and made quite a reputation for himself in Washington as a backstop on some of the fast ball teams in that city. Since his arrival here he has more than made good. While a youngster, he has a good head and is handy with the willow. The Richmond club loses a good man when Lodge quits, and the game loses an ambitious and hard-working boy, who was destined for better things had he continued to follow the profession.

SEIFERT ELECTED CAPTAIN OF A. AND M. BASEBALL TEAM

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) Raleigh, N. C., May 12.—The members of the A. and M. varsity baseball team met to-day and elected D. W. Seifert captain of the 1911 A. and M. team. Seifert, a familiar name to the fans, has made the varsity team for the past three years, and from the start has held his position behind the bat without any doubt. He is a good man for the position, being able to handle a great deal of ginger into the team by his good nature and "never give up" attitude.

The junior class baseball team was defeated by the Raleigh High School team on the A. and M. grounds last Tuesday, the score being 7 to 3. Seifert and LeGrand were the battery for the juniors.

VESSELS COLLIDE DURING DENSE FOG

The distance from Havana to New York by the route taken by the Ward liners is 1,170 miles.

According to the passengers of the Merida the accident occurred during a dense fog but a quiet sea. Six lifeboats were immediately lowered, and in addition two life rafts were thrown out. There seems to have been among the Merida passengers fully two score Mexican refugees, who, fearing the Mexican revolution there, were leaving the country for the United States or European points. Among these are said to have been a Roman Catholic archbishop on his way to Rome.

Losers Are Heavy.

One woman said that she lost not only $1,000 in gold, which she had deposited with the Merida's purser in the ship's safe, but also a half a car load of tropical birds which she was importing. The secretary to the Italian legation in Mexico lost $500, and there were many other losses equal to that. The passengers for the most part escaped only in the clothing they were able to get on their backs, and some left but scantily attired.

A. Peon, the Mexican pilot, whose wife was injured, escaped with only his bath robe. He said he was with his wife, five children and two maids on the way to Paris to visit five other children by a former marriage. His wife was so badly hurt that she had to be lowered from the Merida in a chair, and again from the Merida in like fashion. Mrs. Peon occupied a stateroom on the Merida. An accident struck the Merida, which was being borne to a local hotel for medical attention, the husband refusing offers of hospital service. Mr. Peon said: "She is a very brave woman and will get over it, I know."

Save Only Blankets.

The only things saved by one party of New York women were red blankets in the black and white nightgowns. A lifeboat was being lowered from the Merida with twenty-five people in her, a deaf rope broke and it descended at an angle of twenty-five degrees. When it was approaching the water it was discovered that a necessary plunge to keep her from striking the ground had been forgotten and this had to be waited for. Women clung to the sides to prevent falling out as the boat swung at an angle. One woman fell out, but was rescued. One woman with an infant fainted and dropped her child. It was picked up by a stewardess. The mother, unconscious for four hours, had been moved first to the Admiral Farragut and then to the Hamilton before she revived. The mother did not know where her baby was and neither did the stewardess caring for the child. Know at first where the baby was was A. D. Guerre, of Brooklyn, and Mr. Jones had to jump from the Merida to a life raft. The former was slightly injured. Both were on the life raft for several hours before rescued.

Frank G. Conklin, an importer of 63 Broad Street, New York, said he desired to enter a strong protest against the action of officers of the Merida. He said that they told the passengers to go back to their state rooms, when the ship was in danger of sinking and that all but the captain, quartermaster and first officer look to the boats, ahead even of women and children passengers.

131 first-class passengers, 32 second-class passengers, 25 steerage and 131 in crew. The crew, steerage and eight first-class passengers left to-night on the Old Dominion steamer Princess Anne for New York.

Passengers were given hotel accommodations, and the government officials, and the crew, were given accommodations to-morrow to their respective destinations.

St. Louis stores had to be kept open until late to-night to accommodate the Merida's passengers, who were without sufficient wearing apparel when they were rescued.

Masses in Lost.

According to the passenger lists furnished by the purser on board the Merida and a roll call of the crew, the coastwise steamer, the only death that resulted from the accident was that of a cat, the mascot of the ship. During the accident it was a case of saving of human lives, and no one thought of the mascot, which had been aboard the Merida since it was commissioned, four or five years ago. According to several passengers, as the Merida sank, the vessel in lifeboats, they saw the cat climb upon the upper deck.

The Merida left Havana last Tuesday, and was bound for New York. She was carrying 265 passengers and 131 crew. She was carrying 265 passengers and 131 crew. She was carrying 265 passengers and 131 crew.

Struggling Northward.

New York May 12.—Conveyed by the United States battleship Iowa, and in no immediate danger, the crippled steamer Admiral Farragut is struggling off the coast of Cuba, toward the northeast of Cape Charles, 82 nautical miles and 74.47 north longitude, in thirty-five fathoms of water.

Staying on the ship until fifteen minutes before it went to the bottom.

Hot, But Cooler

That is, the Mercury didn't climb as high as on Thursday.

Although the weather yesterday was really hot for May, the official records of the National Bureau of Weather showed that it was cooler than on Thursday. At 8 A. M. yesterday the thermometer registered 87, as compared with 76 at the same hour on Thursday. The highest reading being 95 at noon. Last night there was a fine breeze, and over the city the clouds were heavy and a brilliant display of summer lightning.

Firemen Form Bucket Brigade to Fight Blaze in Colored Home.

Because the nearest fire plug was too far away, firemen yesterday morning extinguished a fire at 502 Baker Street, the home of Lella Meekins, by damming up a creek and carrying water to the fire in buckets. The fire was reported reading being 95 at noon. Last night there was a fine breeze, and over the city the clouds were heavy and a brilliant display of summer lightning.

The house was destroyed, but other houses adjoining were saved. The fire was caused by an explosion on a coal stove. The woman was preparing a meal. She was injured by the fire, and was treated by Dr. Turman, of the city ambulance corps. She will recover.
